In 2018, Westcountry Tea took the leap to be one of Britain's first 100% plastic free tea companies.

Not only were their tea bags made from corn start (and still are), so no nasty plastics in your cup, but they also started packing their tea bags in a fil made from fast growing eucalyptus tree cellulose, so no nasty plastic in landfill either! They also went through a change of packaging: utilising vegetable inks printed on recycled & sustainably sourced card for their tea boxes. They didn't stop there, even their packaging tape is made of paper with potato starch as the glue, closing the whole circle of making all their products 100% plastic free and kind to the planet. A fact they are rightly so justifiably proud of!
